

I'm all for competition in the broadband industry, but the risk is just too great at this time to move transmissions of the internet to the electric grid.